Infradapt® Announces Strategic Relationship with Digium®, The Asterisk Company

Relationship signals strengthened long-term relationship and greater availability of next-generation telephony solutions for area businesses.

PHILADELPHIA, PA and HUNTSVILLE, AL – 3/4/2008 – Infradapt, a leading regional provider of technology solutions, is proud to announce its enhanced relationship with Digium, the Asterisk company, as a Select Reseller. Digium is the original creator and primary developer of Asterisk, the industry's first open source telephony (PBX) platform that is setting a higher level for business phone systems. Asterisk offers a full menu of business phone features like unified messaging, advanced voice mail features, conference calling and other highly desirable productivity features.

"Infradapt is pleased to expand its relationship with Digium. The market continues to validate VoIP and open-source communications platforms as the future of telephony--Digium's Select Partner designation communicates to our customers and partners how seriously we embrace Digium's products and the support they offer us as a solutions provider," stated Corey S. McFadden, Managing Partner of Infradapt LLC.

Digium is the creator and driving force behind Asterisk, the open source voice communications software deployed by more than 3.5 million servers worldwide to manage VoIP calls for businesses and individuals. More resellers, telecom professionals and software developers choose Digium's products than those of any other open source telephony company because only Digium delivers the technical superiority, security and flexibility associated with Asterisk. Asterisk powers Digium's family of software and hardware appliances including AsteriskNOW™, Asterisk Business Edition™ and Switchvox™.

Infradapt has deployed and supported Asterisk-based telephony systems since 2003. The Company's current clients include nationally recognized Fortune-500 and Fortune-1000 companies, healthcare providers, financial services firms, banks, real estate companies, manufacturers, ad agencies, non-profits and research centers.

"We're very pleased to work with Infradapt and to have a Select Reseller of their caliber. Infradapt's support capability, experience and customer satisfaction is exceptional. We believe that their region will be served well," stated Steve Harvey, VP Worldwide Sales of Digium.

"Digium's Asterisk telephony products offer us the flexibility to deploy highly-adaptable solutions that meet our customers' specific needs. By avoiding artificial proprietary architecture and licensing models, we can deliver highly-available solutions previously unavailable to smaller and mid-sized organizations," continued McFadden.

About Digium

Digium®, Inc., the Asterisk® Company, created, owns and is the innovative force behind Asterisk, the most widely used open source telephony software. Since its founding in 1999, Digium has grown to become the open source alternative to the traditional communication providers, with offerings that cost as much as 80 percent less than proprietary voice communication platforms. Digium makes Asterisk available to the open source community under the GNU General Public License (GPL) and uses business-class Asterisk to power a broad family of products for small, medium and large businesses. The company's product line also includes a wide range of hardware to enable resellers and customers to design their own voice over IP (VoIP) systems. This year alone, more than six billion minutes of calls will be made using Asterisk. More information is available at www.digium.com.
